

It's Certain!

Like death and taxes, no-idling laws are a reality. And you will face a choice. Do you risk fines (or worse) to remain comfortable? Spend your entire maintenance account for an expensive and intrusive heating and air conditioning system? Or do you simply put up with it?

Who we are

We are McNel Company, and your concerns have hit our ears. The owners of our company are uniquely qualified to solve your no-idling bind. As owners of small trucking companies, we too were not satisfied with the choices in idle-reduction technology available.

Educated and experienced in electronic design, we combined both areas of our expertise to formulate the ideal solution.

Our answer

From our own experience, from talking with truck drivers, and from extensive research, we devised an affordable, convenient, and completely comfortable temperature control system that runs on batteries, does not add to the pollution problem, and takes very little away from your living space.

Your solution

Our self-contained unit is either free-standing or (if the truck is one in which it can be done) can be hooked directly into existing ductwork. Because it runs on four deep cycle marine batteries, it does not directly consume costly fuel.

Affordability. Pays for itself in what you save in the first year alone. Costs less than comparable units.

Saves money. Not just on idling fuel costs, but on engine wear and tear too.

Compatibility. The unit is compact, lightweight, and stores out of the way. It is quiet enough to sleep or relax in comfort.

Less road hazard. More sleep in a comfortable environment helps you maintain the frame of mind you need to deal with the challenges of the road. Self-contained unit allows you to stop when you need to.
